Software Industry Experience

At Language Intelligence, we don't just use industry-norm and in-house tools to increase flexibility and drive down long-term costs—we use our localization and programming expertise to make your software seems as if it was developed in the target language from the beginning.

We work with professional linguists with subject-matter expertise in software localization to ensure that your translated software is both linguistically and technically optimized.

Average cost savings we provide our clients through the incorporation of translation technology

Success rate for both on-time delivery and quality as reported through our ISO certified quality management system

We regularly translate into and out of over 60 languages for our software industry clients

Software Localization Services

Software String Localization: We work with a wide range of export formats to localize GUI strings and integrate translations directly into native files.

Software Help Documentation: Once software localization is complete, it's important to make sure that the supporting documentation is also available to your users. We translate installation guides, user guides, and help documentation to be consistent with the translated UI strings and be as clear as possible for target language users.

Software Internationalization Services: We can work with developers early in the programming process to ensure that the English software will transition smoothly into other languages, preventing delays due to formatting, compatibility, and display down the road.

Validation and In-Language Testing: We offer in-language functionality testing and in-context linguistic review to ensure the translated software is ready for release. This step can be performed remotely or on-site at your location.

Mobile App Translation: Because of the limited screen real estate of mobile apps, our mobile app translation services make sure your apps are seamlessly adapted to your target language and culture.
